

Skirtings

Protects walls, conceals gaps and wiring, creates a clean transition between floor and wall, and finishes the room.

Kickboards

Protects the base of cabinetry, hides cabinet legs, and keeps the kickspace looking neat and finished.

These need to be removed prior to our arrival.

Skirtings and kitchen kickboards within the installation area must be removed before flooring installation begins. This allows our installers to fit the new flooring correctly beneath these areas and achieve a clean, professional finish.

Unless removal is specifically included in your quotation, taking off and reinstating skirtings and kickboards is the responsibility of the client or their nominated trades, and must be completed prior to our arrival on site.
